

Pop Art: Repeated Image Study

Name: _____ Date: _____

LEARNING OBJECTIVE

The student will create a Pop Art-style piece using repetition and bold color inspired by artists like Andy Warhol.

MATERIALS NEEDED

- paper divided into a 4-square grid (or 4 separate small squares)
- pencil
- markers or colored pencils (at least 4 bright colors)
- ruler

HANDS-ON ACTIVITY

1. Choose one simple, bold image (an object like a shoe, a piece of fruit, a soda can, or your own simple face outline) and draw it once clearly on paper to use as a template.
2. Trace or redraw the same image 4 times, once in each square of your grid, keeping the outline identical each time.
3. Color each of the 4 repeated images using a completely different, bold color scheme in each square (e.g., one bright pink and yellow, one blue and orange), inspired by Andy Warhol's repeated silkscreen style.
4. Outline each image boldly in black marker to make the shapes pop, similar to Pop Art's graphic, poster-like style.
5. Write the name of your chosen everyday object at the bottom, in large block letters, as Pop Art often celebrated ordinary consumer objects.

QUESTIONS

1. What everyday object did you choose to repeat, and why does Pop Art often focus on ordinary objects?

2. Name one artist associated with the Pop Art movement.

3. How did using repetition and bold, contrasting colors change the feeling of your artwork compared to a single, realistically colored image?

4. How is Pop Art different from Surrealism in terms of subject matter and style?
